

Overview of the FAA Electrical energy storage Research program

This program investigates the safe implementation of new electrical energy store devices in Aircraft. Determine characteristics of what constitutes a safe energy storage system installation, operation, monitoring, control and maintenance. The program focus on Lithium battery and hydrogen fuel cell installation in part 25 aircraft, for use in electric propulsion and other aircraft applications.